As I mentioned earlier, I've spent years jumping from application to application at the urging of my editors. I wasn't necessarily wrong, but that doesn't mean I wasn't wasting a lot of time at the time. Adobe finally made my life easier by releasing Lightroom on the Mac platform. The previous version was available on the Mac, but only as a Windows application. This new version is available as a Universal Binary. I really like it as it makes it even easier and more convenient to use Lightroom on the Mac. I'm sure switching between applications becomes unnecessary as the use of both Mac and Windows continues to grow. The departmental site also has a new "place" tab. Previously, this was available under the "Organize" tab, like all the other sites. Now you can access departmental topics such as general data, albums, people, and categories from the place tab, providing easy, centralized access to all your content. The latest update also adds another "view" setting on the Edit menu. The new view, "Show Layers", conceals "Embed Layers" by default, giving you a nicely organized window of your document. Whenever you make changes, for example, you get a new preview window of your new, altered art. Overall, the latest release of Adobe Photoshop CC is an excellent software package. New features are extremely welcome and long overdue. I have a feeling Adobe is preparing to release Photoshop CS5 or Lightroom 5.0. It's just too soon to know exactly what they'll release, but I'm sure the wait will be worth it, since this version is proof that the software company is invested in the future of its businesses.

You can erase multiple layers at once by clicking on each layer you'd like to erase. To hide the layer, you can simply press the eye icon that's next to the layer. In this instance, you are going to erase some of the background of the market. Like mentioned above, the Eraser tool is great for blending and removing unwanted things like lines. The strength of the Eraser tool is that it allows you to erase areas of your image completely. Which is great if you want to go from light to dark areas of your finished piece. Here you can see how the Eraser tool allows us to remove the weather effects completely from the buildings. This is why it's so important to choose the right blending options and blend them correctly with the Eraser tool. To Edit Text: Click on the Text tool located in the Pixel Fill box. Then, select the text layer that you would like to edit and begin to make changes to your text. Go to the Tricks menu: Select Effects > Blur > Motion Blur and add a keyframe to it. You can use the type tool on the layers you are editing. Click on the type tool and add the text you would like on that layer. You can choose from any font you want, but you might need to add a slight rotation in order to use a font. After you have added the font to your text, you can apply multiple effects to your selected layers. Here I am adding a drop shadow and a bevel. You can also add drop shadows to your images and clipart. Just make sure you drop shadows and dodging and burning is the same size and strength. Then, you can add some artistic effects to your layers. Just remember, a smaller size makes your layer more crisp, and a larger size makes your layer more fuzzy. e3d0a04c9c
